Can I Look Patriotic and Chic?

Today 12:00 PM PST

I am a huge Obama supporter and want to show it without looking tacky. What patriotic fashions would you recomend?

Think beyond red, white and even blue, my dear. Those all spell love of country, but not necessarily the love of a particular president.

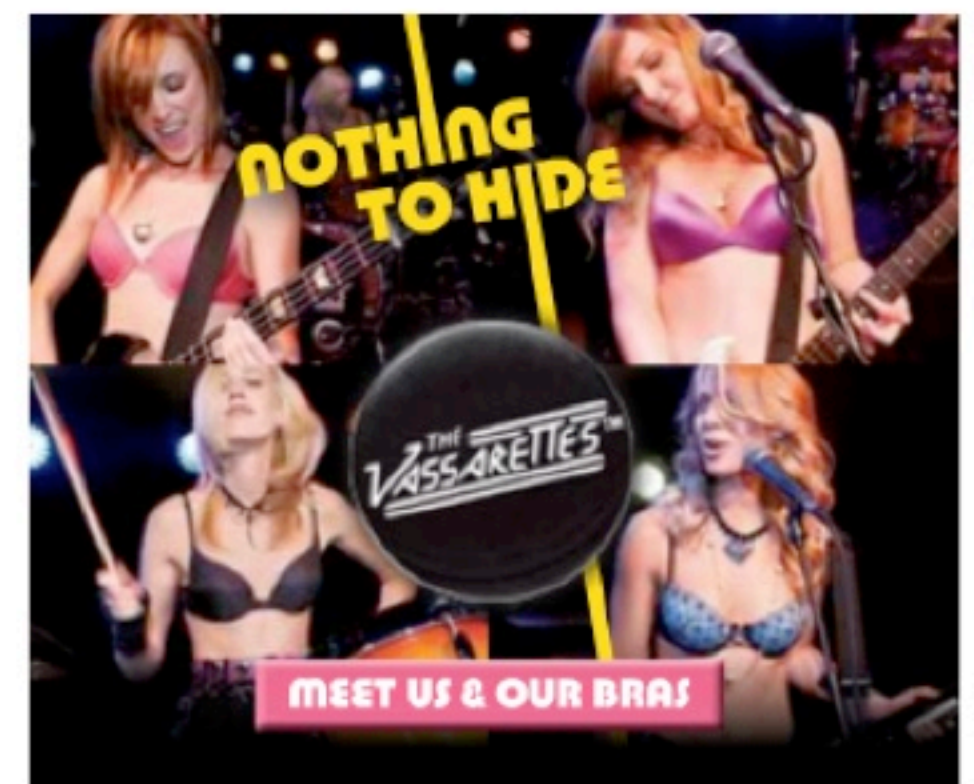

Instead, you should show your adoration of things Obama by becoming a master of Michelle's wardrobe.

Did you know that her inaugural gloves were from J. Crew and her coat was in a shade called lemongrass? Those gloves sold out online, but the lemongrass color is everywhere this season. Why not take advantage—and show all your stylish friends just how Obama-maniacal you really are, without looking like a flag?

First, a primer on the exact color.

First, a primer on the exact color.

"It's a muted yellow," explains handbag trend forecaster Pamela Pekerman. "Not at all a sunshine yellow—closer to an eggshell color."

Gotcha. Now embrace the hue championed by Michelle through maybe a new handbag or pair of flats. Pekerman loves the new M. Clifford bag in a style called Huntley, or you could go all-out and buy an entire dress, like Bill Blass' silk chiffon pleat gown.

When all else fails, there's the Obama Mama T-shirt.
